
Contents

Acknowledgments	xi
Foreword by David R. Maines	xiii

INTRODUCTION	1
Pragmatism and Chicago Sociological Interaction	1
Chicago Sociology and Action/Interaction	4
Narrative: Autobiographical Detail and Collective Biography	5
A Slow Recognition	11
Assumptions, and Theories of Action	13

PART I

1. ASSUMPTIONS OF A THEORY OF ACTION	19
Contrasts	19
Basic Assumptions of a Theory of Action	21
Definitions	22
A List of Assumptions	23
A Final Comment	45
2. AN INTERACTIONIST THEORY OF ACTION	47
Introductory Remarks	48
Work, A Major Form of Action	51
Trajectory and Related Concepts	52
Subconcepts	54
Additional Concepts	57
A Conditional Matrix	60
Properties and Types, and Local Concepts	65
A Note on Types of Experiences	68
The Usefulness of a Theory of Action	70

PART II

A Preliminary Note and Analysis	75
3. WORK AND THE INTERSECTION OF FORMS OF ACTION	81
Work as Rational and Its Rationalization	82
History within the Work	84
Routines and Contingencies	85
The Centrality of Interaction for Work	86
Work in Relation to Other Forms of Action	93
Biographical Work and Its Intersections	97
4. BODY, BODY PROCESSES, AND INTERACTION	107
Body as a Necessary Condition for Action	108
Body as Agent	110
Body as Object	110
Self—As Subject, As Object—And Body	111
Mental Activity and the Mind	112
Intentional and Unintentional Action in Relation to Body	113
The Body and Temporal Aspects of Interaction	117
Contextual Conditions for Body in Interaction	117
Body-Mind Metaphors	118
Symbolization and the Body	119
Action, Performance, and Appearance	120
Body Processes	121
“Having an Experience”	122
5. INTERACTION, THOUGHT PROCESSES, AND BIOGRAPHY	127
Thought Processes as Action	129
Thought Processes and Biographical Processes	136
A Case History	138
A Final Note	146

6. INTERACTING AND SYMBOLIZING	149
Language and Symbolizing	150
Symbols, Symbolizing, and Symbolic Products	151
Motivations, Symbolizations, and Interactions	153
Symbolic Universes	155
Collapse, Loss, and Estrangement from Symbolic Universes	157
Social Worlds and Symbolization	159
A Case Study of Symbolization: Urban Images of Chicago	160
Large-Scale Symbolization	162
Diffuse Collective Symbolizations	166
7. REPRESENTATION AND MISREPRESENTATION IN INTERACTION	169
Difficulties in Interpreting Representations	170
Representation versus "Presentation of Self"	172
Representational Interactions	173
Representing in the Interactions	176
Strategic Interaction	187
8. THE INTERPLAY OF ROUTINE AND NONROUTINE ACTION	191
Routine Action	193
The Complex Nature of Routines and Routine Actions	194
Routine, Innovation, and Creativity	200
9. SOCIAL WORLDS AND SOCIETY	209
Asserted or Presumed Dominance of Social Class, Race, Gender, and Other Social Units	210
A Social-World Perspective	212
Social-World Processes	215

Social Worlds and the Nation-State	219
Genocide as a Case Illustration	221
10. SOCIAL WORLDS AND INTERACTION IN ARENAS	225
Arenas and Social Worlds	226
Policy Arenas	227
Scientists in Policy Arenas	232
Summary Note	242
11. NEGOTIATED ORDER AND STRUCTURAL ORDERING	245
The Interactionist Position	246
Negotiated Order	248
Implications Concerning Order and Change	250
Processual Ordering	254
The Necessity of Processual Ordering and the Foundational Role of Matrix Conditions	255
Order-Disorder, Stability-Instability, and Change	258
REFERENCES	263
INDEX	275